

Hello and a belated Happy New Year!

It's hard to believe that we are already a quarter of the way through 2018 and preparing for another home textiles market in New York. As time passes quickly, so do the trends we follow. Some fall by the wayside, while others either stay with us or change direction. Some morph and flow into each other putting twists on what has come before, creating new and exciting looks. Such is the case with our latest Brentwood Blast offering... Beyond Blush.

Blush is often referred to as "Millennial Pink," one of the pretty pales, flamingo pink, and part of the New Romantic movement. Blush has blanketed fashion magazines, Pinterest, home furnishing catalogues, as well as any number of websites for more than a year. But, the time has come for beautiful blush to be joined by the likes of aqua, violet, gauzy gold and taupe. All of them in same hushed hues of their Queen "B".

The market has seen specific focus on celadon, seafoam, sage and softened tones of citron green and gold. The Atlanta International Gift & Home Furnishings Market in January saw these shades paired with grey and taupe in all manner of decor from traditional to modern, eclectic and minimal. Neutral woods and matte metals added a bit of shimmer and glow to this revised revolution.

Quiet colors create a calming space; an escape from our fast-paced lives and tech-infused environments. At this market we will show them in patterned jacquards, faux furs, solid chenilles, velvet textures and tweedy non-solid solids.

So, we invite you to stop by the showroom and see what is happening Beyond Blush.
